The Reach of Song

an Appalachian Drama

*Let us whisper in your ear
the things that we've come upon through the years.*

Hear the spirit of the mountains whispering in your ear, as the "Reach of Song" drama continues telling the stories, singing the songs, and passing on the traditions of the southern Appalachians.

This year the Reach of Song returns to its spiritual and creative roots. For the first time ever, the show will be staged at the college where the man whose life inspired the drama—Writer Byron Herbert Reece—was, himself, first inspired. This fantastic multi-media event will be staged for the first time by the show's creator, who has woven in an array of surprise performances and special appearances that provide a once-in-a-lifetime access to the very soul of the play; the soul of these mountains.

GROUP SERVICES

Special discounts and seating by advance reservation are available for church, civic, family, and business groups. Information on area restaurants, accommodations, and attractions are also available. Let The Reach of Song group services help plan your trip to the mountains.

*Come on up close... Listen real good...
And bring along some people who matter (to you)...*
